Municipalities don't have to worry about forced bilingualism, says Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins. English-only declarations by municipalities won't change anything, he says.
Please see page 2.

County says 'non'

Minden and Haliburton County are the latest to object to the provincial French Language Services Act. At Minden Council, the vote was unanimous, but at the County level there was considerable debate.
Please see page 7.

Curling action

There was plenty of strong curling competition to be had in Minden and Haliburton last week. Minden hosted the annual Rockbuster men's bonspiel on the weekend with 32 teams competing. And in Haliburton, the ladies battled it out in the Regional SOLCA competition early in the week. Please see pages 11, 12 and 14.

Battling illiteracy

Haliburton County's Literacy program co-ordinator is leading the fight against illiteracy from her office in Haliburton.

Blossoming talents

What happens when marigold seeds are exposed to radioactivity? The answer is revealed through a spell-binding performance from the cast of the Highland's Little Theatre's production of 'The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-moon Marigolds.' Erin Lynch shares the spotlight in this touching drama. She plays the part of the inhibited daughter, who succeeds in spite of her mother's interference. Heather Scully, a veteran performer with this drama group, has immersed herself in the role of the domineering mother of two. Audiences have come to expect strong performances from Scully, and they won't be disappointed in her efforts here. 'Marigolds' runs for three nights, March 1, 2 and 3 at the high school.

Hawk Lake cottagers ask county for drawdown limit

Looking to find some relief to the ongoing problem of dangerously low water levels, Hawk Lake cottagers are again asking Haliburton County Council to consider recommending a seven-foot maximum drawdown be implemented on their lake.

With support from the Haliburton Highlands Water Levels Advisory Committee and the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Association (FOCA), they are also asking for a review of the 1905 Order in Council which placed control of the waterway in the hands of the federal government.

County Council listened to a lengthy presentation from Hawk Lake cottager Dr. William Brown at last Wednesday's meeting. He outlined some of the problems experienced by cottagers and residents of his lake and said the Trent Severn Waterway authority is not responsive to the needs of this area.

On hand to hear the presentation and provide input were representatives of the Trent Severn Waterway and FOCA.

Plummeting water levels are common in lakes throughout the Highlands each summer as the Trent Severn draws away to maintain minimum flows to the lower part of the waterway. The effect is felt to differing degrees in the various lakes, with Hawk Lake taking the brunt of the punishment as its level drops by more than 13 feet. Eels lake is next in line, experiencing drawdowns of about 12 feet.

Brown told council that a maximum drawdown of seven feet on these two lakes would solve many of their navigational problems and have only a minor impact on the levels of rest of the lakes in the reservoir system. By limiting the drawdown to seven feet, he said other lakes would be sacrificing only two to four inches—and that is only during an extremely dry summer.

Cottagers are angered by the excessive

New development controls proposed

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has adopted two new measures in an effort to gain tighter control over development projects and to try to eliminate land flipping in the township.

The actions are a result of concerns about development sites along the Bobcaygeon Road between the Rockcliffe Tavern and the Guardian Drug Store Plaza. Along this stretch of road there are three excavated construction sites, two of which changed ownership without completion of either of the development proposals.

The first measure adopted by council at last Thursday's meeting was a resolution which requires a Site Plan Agreement between the developer and the township be signed before any re-zoning to a Commercial designation can take place.

The resolution is designed to stop speculators from buying property, rezoning it to Commercial, severing it into separate lots and then selling the land for a profit without actually developing it.

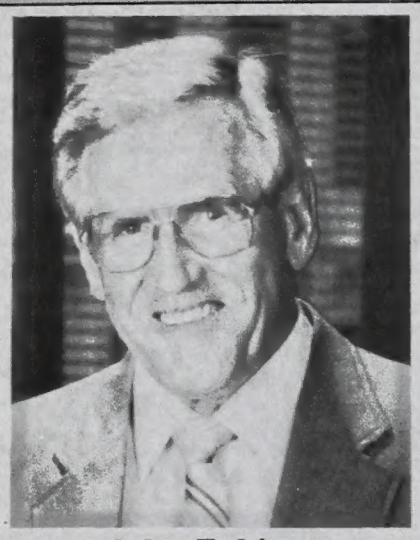
French no threat; Eakins



John Eakins

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Victoria-Haliburton's MPP says municipalities do not have to worry about the province forcing them into bilingualism.

"There's no plan for that," John Eakins said in an interview last week. "I don't see that happening."

Eakins was responding to the move by several Haliburton municipalities in following the lead of Sault Ste. Marie and declaring themselves English-only.

So far Snowdon, Lutterworth, Glamorgan, Sherborne and Minden have all passed resolutions declaring English as their only official language. In the last municipal election, Stanhope voters rejected French language services in a referendum and last week the county council passed a resolution of its own Eakins says he doesn't know the basis of the townships' decisions, but if it's in response to the French Language Services Act (Bill 8), then declaring themselves English-only won't change anything.

Bill 8 says that where the number of Francophone residents warrant, the provincial government will provide services in French if requested. Areas applying must have a francophone population of 5,000 people or francophones must make up 10 per cent of the total population.

The Bill does not require municipalities to provide services in French, and Eakins says he can't foresee the provincial government making such a move in the future.

And because Victoria-Haliburton does not have a sufficient francophone population to warrant the province providing services in French, Eakins says no local jobs are threatened by the French Language Services Act.

"I understand there is some fear of bilingualism," Eakins said. "If we get to know each other on a more personal basis, the fears will be eliminated."

He is concerned about the message municipalities are sending when declaring themselves as English-only. Minden is twinned with the city of Minden, Germany, and Eakins wonders about the consistency of having a cultural relationship with a European city on one hand, and declaring the township unilingual on the other hand.

Eakins says Thunder Bay is another example of mixed messages. Thunder Bay has also declared itself English-only but at the same time Eakins says the city is trying to attract international skiing competitions. "I don't think they are sending a very good signal."

Councils have made the determination to become unilingual, says Eakins and that decision is up to them but, "passing a by-law won't have any effect."

Minden's new bylaw targets land flipping and site excavations

By insisting a Site Plan Agreement be in place before the rezoning, and a letter of credit given to the township by the developer, council will be in a position to make sure development actually takes place.

The agreements, which cover all aspects of the proposed development, will be registered on title so that even if a property is sold, the new owner will be bound to the original development proposal.

Council also passed a building by-law which puts the control of excavations of proposed sites into the hands of the municipal by-law enforcement officer.

The new by-law requires developers to receive a building permit from the township building department before doing any work on a proposed site. This applies to the construction or demolition of a building, any excavation work, grading and the removal or rock soils or vegetation.

Work is subject to the approval of the municipal engineer, at the discretion of the by-law officer.

When applying for a building permit, a developer must describe in detail the work and the proposed use of the building.

The by-law also sets a time limit on how long a devloper can wait before starting construction on an excavated site. No excavation shall be left for a period of 60 days or more without construction commencing.

After the 60-day period has expired and no construction has begun, the township will have the excavation backfilled at the owner's expense.

Anyone contravening the by-law is liable to a fine of up to $2,000, or a year in prison or both under the Building Code Act.

Reeve Ray Moore, who has just returned from a month-long vacation, said he recognized the problem the township was having with uncontrolled excavations and called the by-law "a good thing to pursue."

But he asked council to table the by-law until the next meeting to give him time to study it.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said council had been considering the by-law since February 6, and he wanted to "get it in place as soon as possible.

"We don't want any more excavations without some control," said Berry.

Lewis Stevens expressed concern that the section of the by-law which prohibits removing vegetation without a permit could apply to someone cutting down a tree in their yard.

"I think you're reading things into it," Berry told Stevens. But Moore agreed that Stevens' concern is valid.

By-law officer Tom Hubercheck, who drafted the document, said the removal of vegetation was covered to prevent the possibilty of someone stripping a slope of vegetation which could subject the property to erosion.

All three of the development sites along the Bobcaygeon Road were excavated without any municipal approval. And two of the sites have sat undeveloped for more than 60 days.

Drawdown limit asked for Hawk Lake drawdown, Brown told council. He said the low water creates a hazard to navigation and a multitude of other problems. He noted that two thirds of the cottages on his lake are accessible only by water.

Brown said he has read all the literature on this topic and is confident that all his concerns have been expressed in the past.

"Anything I have to say has been said in the past," Brown told Council. He said this leads him to believe that the waterway is not responsive to the needs of this area.

The waterway's mandate, which was set out in the 1905 Order in Council, is to maintain minimum flows. "It's as narrow of that."

He likened the situation experienced here to a joint bank account. "The TSW can take what it wants and we can take what's left."

Brown contends that the Order in Council is out of date. Haliburton has changed significantly since 1905, he said, and the TSW mandate should reflect this. When there is a shortage of water, the lower Trent should "take its share of the knocks," he said. "In the past, they haven't done that."

The waterway operates well within the limits of its mandate, he said. However, that mandate does not give any consideration to the water level in the reservoir lakes.

Brown said the waterway has made "a few tinkers" to the system. It now monitors the flows with computers, "but that really hasn't changed much," he said.

"We propose a fundamental change in operation," he said. Responsibility should be transferred back to the province, he said, and it should be made more responsive to the concerns of this area.

Brown told council he isn't so naive as to think that a transfer from one level of government to another would solve all the problems. However, he said there is a real problem with the present system in getting access to change things.

"If a provincial agency was created to address all concerns, it would be more responsive—certainly more than the TSW is now."

The Order in Council effectively "buffers" this area from having any input into the manner in which waterway is run, he said. "Kawartha and areas to the south are guaranteed their water. They don't have to squawk. We have no say.

"We have no way of doing this except by pulling the coattails of our MPP or MP," said Brown. A regulatory body charged to address the needs of the entire waterway would do a better job, he said. Under the present system, he said "the TSW does its own lonely thing."

Brown said "the system is fundamentally structured in a way that people can't change things."

Several councillors had questions and concerns about the proposal for a seven-foot maximum drawdown on Hawk and Eels Lake.

Minden Deputy Reeve Bern Berry wondered if this drawdown limit would impact on Minden Lake. Berry, who lives on Minden Lake, said his lake has the added problem of having to provide water to the Orillia Water Light and Power generating station. "Your proposal sounds feasible," he told Brown, "but have you looked at the possibility that you'd leave Minden lake a little pond?"

Brown noted that drawdown limitation on Hawk lake affect only a few of the lakes in the chain. He said he didn't think Minden Lake would be affected by this.

Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman said there are two lakes in his township that are connected by a river. He said navigation between these lakes is often difficult when the water is low and wondered if an additional drop of two to four inches would further complicate the problem.

Brown said the additional drop of two to four inches is based on a worst case scenario and doesn't affect all lakes. He said the difference would be almost immeasurable on most lakes.

Brown's information is based on figures supplied by Bruce Kitchen from the TSW. The lakes that would be most affected by the drawdown limit on Hawk

Tough policies will monitor development

Minden's new tough policy on land development will make speculators think twice before buying land they have no intention of developing.

Land flipping has become all too common in recent times, with so-called developers snapping up prime land in the area, having it rezoned and selling at a profit. This practice, although not illegal, provides no tangible gain to the community, yet drives up the price of real estate for true developers.

Council's new policy effectively locks developers into their initial proposals. In order to rezone land to Commercial, developers must first sign a Site Plan Agreement, binding them to the original development proposal. The agreement is registered on title, ensuring that, even if the lands are sold undeveloped, the buyer will have to follow through on the initial plan.

Council also passed a by-law which will prevent excavations until a building permit is in hand.

This by-law is in response to recent excavation projects in the village that have gone ahead without the prior purchase of building permits. Once the land is torn up, the municipality is stuck with two bitter alternatives. It can either approve a project that might be inappropriate for the area, or reject the proposal, leaving a partially-excavated eyesore in the village.

The new by-law frees council and the by-law officer to have their say before any work proceeds. It also prevents excavated lands from being left undeveloped for longer than 60 days, forcing developers to follow through on the work they have initiated and limiting the eyesore of partially-developed land.

These stiff regulations will go a long way to improving the municipalities control over development—control that is vital with the current rapid pace of development in the area.

Trouble with Canadians goes deeper than language

by Jack Brezina
Publisher

There is a malaise growing across our country that has many people genuinely concerned for the future of Canada. The most prominent symptom of this condition is the recent spate of English-only resolutions endorsed by municipal councils. While their actions have temporarily grabbed the spotlight, I believe they are only representative of troubles which run much deeper, to the heart of what it means to individuals to be Canadian.

As Canadians we have defined ourselves by describing what we are not, rather than by what we are. We bristle when someone suggests we are the same as Americans. For the most part, we reject labels which attempt to identify us by our colonial roots . Canadians, it seems, have always known what we are not, but have never really been certain as to what we are as a people.

Even in the euphoric days of 1967, when we marked our one hundreth birthday, we seemed to bring some focus to our identity, but it slipped away

Many Canadian cities snuggled up to border

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

I've done a little hop-scotching around the country this past couple of weeks. My travels have fetched me up in locales as various as Windsor, Thunder Bay, Toronto, Montreal, Brandon and Lethbridge.

Now I'm not pretending that's anything close to a comprehensive cross-country survey but it's a pretty fair ramble across the glorious chunk of terra firma we call Canada, and there is a common connecting thread. All the communities I spent time in are, as so many Canadian cities are, snugged up pretty close to the southern boundary of this country.

Which is to say, no more than a short drive from the Canada/U.S. border — a.k.a. the World's Longest Checkout Counter.

Folks I talked to in all those communities had a lot of things on their mind. They spoke out forthrightly about Meech Lake, the possibility of arranging urine tests for Bill Vander Zalm, the Liberal leadership race, George Bush's bush-league switchblade-rattling exercises in Central America, the Gretzky/Lemieux duel for on-ice divinity...

The Canadians I met in all of the aforementioned communities talked about all those subjects — eventually. But what they talked about first and foremost was Buying Things.

In a word: shopping.

They talked about buying lumber, beer, gas, and

Respond with vigor to negative forces at work

like dry sand through a clinched fist. When the party was over, most of us discovered that while the celebration filled us with a nascent sense of who we were, in fact we were not much closer to nailing down exactly what it meant to be a Canadian.

For the most part, we have been satisfied to allow ourselves to drift along with a hazy notion of Canada and Canadianism, accepting the situation as it was and not really worrying that as a nation we had little or no clear self-image.

In recent years, however, that comfortable complacency has come under attack, leading to the position we find our nation in today. There are many factors that have contributed to the assault, each chipping away at what little image we held in common.

Certainly, a major contributing factor has been the increasing national debt. Only recently have we come to realize what a crushing burden years of borrowing against the future has created. The national debt, not just the annual deficit, looms over us like a darkening shadow, clouding our hopes for the future those of our children. Despite seeming prosperity in some sectors of the nations, we slip deeper into a spiral of debt from which extracting ourselves becomes increasingly difficult. Our ability to control the levers of our economy are rapidly slipping from our grasp as the debt owed to foreign lenders continues to mount.

Of more recent vintage is the commitment we have made to a free trade agreement with the United States. There may indeed be economic benefits lurking in the ill-conceived rush to join these two countries in a tighter union, but at what cost? So far, all that has been evident are lay-offs, plant relocations (not to Canada), concessions that always seem to favour the U.S. and a pervasive feeling that the country is being sold out from under us.

The turmoil created by the agreement reached at Meech Lake has fractured the country further. This is an accord that will chart the future of Canada into the next century. Such a broad plan deserves careful consideration and must, I think, be willingly accepted by a vast majority of Canadians if we are to survive as a cohesive and effective nation. Dismissing those who challenge the accord as nay-sayers, nation destroyers or insensitive louts does little to expand the dialogue any agreement like this deserves. Likewise, blackmailing those who question Meech Lake by claiming its rejection will rip the country apart, fails to recognize the right of Canadians to feel comfortable with the terms of any accord before their nation sets off on a new direction. Who has the right to say the Meech Lake accord, or any other "arrangement" is right for Canada? We all do! And, until the politicians create an agreement which everyone can live with, they should not rest in their efforts to find it. If they ram through an agreement which is unacceptable to a significant portion of the country, they will do irreparable harm to Canada. The strong under-current of objection is a signal to those who lead that Canadians are not comfortable with what has been presented and they should return to the table to find an acceptable common ground.

We have woven our nation together with patches of many hues and fabrics. It is perhaps not the easiest way to build a nation, but it is the road we have chosen and it is inevitable that from such an approach, conflicts will emerge. We have chosen to build a nation where individual cultures are encouraged to flourish and yet we find ourselves erecting English-only fences, French-only sign laws, challenges to tradition and demands from our Native communities.

Despite the gloomy picture I paint here, it is still too early to write this country off. On the other hand, it is not too soon to start doing something about the malaise. The time has come for Canadians to become aggressive about our nationality. It is time to end pettiness and back-stabbing. It is time to stand together as Canadians. This country is rich in natural wealth. We inhabit a spacious, relatively clean, dynamic country that has a part to play in the world. Though troubled by our diversity, Canada is still a nation which can find strength in its people. We are a nation blessed.

The time has come to stop drawing lines in terms of east/west, French/English, immigrant/native. The time has come to think Canadian, to discover our singularity and foster a drive to survive. It is a time for tolerance, understanding, caring and compromise. It is time to demand that our leaders forge a bond of unity and steer our nation away from internal conflict and divisiveness. It is time for each Canadian to recognize this is a country worth preserving and bend to the task of ensuring it does.

Unless we all respond with vigour to the negative forces at work in this nation and blunt their destructive power, we will have little to offer our children and grandchildren but lame excuses.

Canadians are wasting the energy resources

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

At the World Energy Conference in Montreal last September, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney told the delegates: "There is no question that a much more fundamental integration of economic and environmental imperatives is needed."

He is right on. Take energy.

Canadians are used to seemingly limitless cheap energy. There is little incentive to conserve so we waste it, using twice as much per capita as Japan or Sweden.

Provincial energy corporations become virtually autonomous entities with massive budgets. Eighty per cent of Ontario's debt is the $29 billion owed by Ontario Hydro and costs $2 billion a year just for interest. Hydro's new 25-year plan is estimated to cost anywhere from $61 billion to $200 billion.

Our electrical future has enormous ecological repercussions.

In Quebec, half of the major rivers flowing into James Bay are already dammed with devastating effects on wildlife and indigenous people. The second phase will harness most of the remaining rivers.

Shoppers head south of the border stamps. And once again there was a common thread.

All the shopping was paid for in Canadian money. And all the things they purchased were bought in the States.

Folks in all the communities I visited routinely nipped south of the border, if only to fill their gas tanks and pick up a few groceries. Or to mail a few letters. Did you know it cost you 16 cents less to send a first-class letter to a U.S. address if you mail it from the States? A lot of small Canadian businessmen have figured that out. So has Tourism New Brunswick. Officials there claim they saved $70,000 last year by trucking their foreign mail across the Maine border and posting it stateside.

ITEM: I have a pal in Windsor, Ontario who drinks beer. Quite a bit of it. Every couple of weeks he braves the Windsor Tunnel to hit a Detroit booze outlet and load up on a case or two of his favourite brew. Reason: he can pick up his brand in Detroit for less than half the price he pays in Windsor.

Name of his favourite brew? Molson Canadian.

ITEM: My pal Bill in Thunder Bay is planning to drive down to Minnesota and buy a couple of thousand dollars worth of tongue and groove siding. Reason: simple. Even after paying customs duty it'll cost him half as much as it would in Thunder Bay.

Now, it's one thing to find out that a bottle of Jack Daniels Sour Mash whiskey or a C.F. Martin acoustic guitar costs more in Moose Jaw than it does in Poughkeepsie, New York — those things are, after all, made down there.

But Molson Canadian? Tongue and groove pine siding?

Aren't those in our department?

Sure they are. They're cheaper south of the border because American retailers don't pay the Canadian tax.

It's all very nice that Canadian shoppers are enjoying a windfall of trans-border bargains, but what is it doing to our Canadian merchants? Answer: driving a lot of them into putting 'For Sale' signs in their shop windows. Last year, American firms bought up nearly $10 billion worth of Canadian business..

That pompous outport gasbag John Crosbie recently grabbed headlines by accusing Canadian businessmen of being lazy. Get off your duffs, he said, become more agressive, like the Americans.

Sure, John boy, that's the ticket! We'll do it up big! Let's string a giant red and white and blue banner along the 49th parallel! FOR SALE. ONE COUNTRY, HARDLY USED. AIRLINES, RAILWAYS, BUSINESSES BIG AND SMALL, NATIONAL ODDS AND ENDS PRICED TO CLEAR. NO REASONABLE OFFER REFUSED.

If Canada can't go out with a bang we could at least go out with a helluva garage sale.

Cost of classrooms could force an increase in taxes

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Residents in Haliburton County can probably expect an increase in education taxes of at least 10 per cent.

Jim Bradley, the school board's business administrator, says the staff is working on the expenditures for 1990 and they will be presented to the trustees at a special budget meeting tomorrow (Tuesday).

This year the board has to create about seven or eight new classroom spaces, which Bradley describes as a "major expenditure."

The board won't have a definite idea of what tax increases will be necessary until the province announces the level of funding it will be providing. Bradley said the amount the province will transfer to local school boards will depend on the effects of last Tuesday's federal budget.

In his budget speech, Finance Minister Michael Wilson said the federal government will be cutting back on its transfers to the provinces, especially Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia, in an attempt to control the federal deficit.

The cuts in transfer payment to Ontario will result in a shortfall of almost $500 million and provincial treasurer Robert Nixon says he will be looking at tax increases and program cuts to make up the difference.

All this could spell trouble for the Haliburton County Board of Education, which is already facing financial problems because of an increase in the student population with no significant increase in provincial funding.

Last year the board limited its budget growth to 9.8 per cent, just enough to cover inflation and an increase in the number of students. But because provincial funding increased by less than one per cent, trustees had to increase the amount collected through local property taxes by 15.7 per cent.

As well, the province has yet to grant the Haliburton board any of the capital expenditure grants it needs to build new classroom space to ease overcrowding in schools in Haliburton and Minden.

Given the list of necessary expenditures the board is facing this year, Bradley says a 10 per cent increase in the board's budget, "a very optimistic number."

Township buys new fire truck

Minden council has given the go ahead for the township to purchase a new fire truck.

At last Thursday's meeting, council approved payment of a $5,000 deposit on the $97,000 vehicle which will be delivered sometime this year.

As part of last year's fire agreement negotiations with Lutterworth and Snowdon townships, Minden council agreed to match the amount of the stand-by fees paid by those municipalities and place the money in a reserve fund to buy the truck.

"We feel it's time to do it," said councillor Bob Sisson. He said the price of the truck last May was $85,500 and it has since gone up to $97,000. By putting a deposit on the vehicle now, Sisson said the township could avoid another price increase on April 1.

And although he said he wasn't sure if the federal government's seven per cent Goods and Services Tax (GST) would apply to the truck, Sisson said Minden could avoid the possibility of paying the tax by purchasing the truck this year. The GST is scheduled to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1991.

So far, the township has raised 75 per cent of the cost of the truck.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry suggested that the township write letters to Snowdon and Lutterworth councils informing them of the impending purchase and thanking them for their support.

Limits could result in 'chain reaction'

and Eeels lakes would be Kennisis, Redstone and Nunikani.

Fred Alyea, representing the waterway, said this is a "very emotional and personal issue," and he is aware that drawdowns in the reservoir lakes affect a lot of people.

Although he did not express any objections to the proposal for a maximum drawdown on Hawk and Eels Lake, he said council should first try to find out if other lakes will be asking for similar limits. If this is granted for two lakes, residents of the other lakes may ask for the same, triggering a "chain reaction," he said. If the waterway is to grant this request, it first needs to know that there is agreement among residents of other lakes in the system, he said.

Cardiff Deputy Reeve Keith Murphy also asked if any consideration has been given to the potential for harm to fisheries, and wildlife habitat that might result from even a slight change in the water levels.

Kitchen responded to this question, stating that this has not yet been addressed through any research done by the waterway. He said it would have to be an "extensive analysis," adding that this is part of the reasoning for keeping the status quo. If there is no change in the way things are done, there will be no impact on wildlife and fisheries, he said.

To this, Brown replied that environmental concerns have never been a consideration in the amount of water that can be drawn from the reservoir lakes. "Drawdowns have never taken into account any of this," he said. "It's all based on a decision made at the turn of the century," said Brown. "The whole system . . . the whole economy of the area has fundamentally changed since then."

Brown suggested that the seven-foot maximum drawdown should be implemented with a "sunset clause". Try it for a few years and find out if there is a problem, he said, "but for heaven's sake don't fear to tread."

Jerry Strickland, executive director of FOCA and a member of the water levels advisory committee, lent support to Brown's requests. "We'd gladly donate a few inches to the cause," said Strickland, who is also the president of the Miskwabi Lake cottagers association. "The damage is done at two and a half feet, another three inches doesn't make a difference," he said.

Strickland also supported the bid to transfer responsibility for the waterway back to the province. He said the present system is not responsive to the needs of this area. "I'm tired of getting 'it's not our mandate,' " he said "Make it your mandate."

Strickland took it a step further by suggesting "movers and shakers" sub-committee of the water levels management committee be formed. This committee would meet with the new provincial Minister of Natural Resources and with the federal Environment Minister to make them informed of the problems. He commended Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis for accomplishing this task in the past, but expressed frustration that both these positions have since been filled by new members.

Other recommendations made by Strickland include: drafting terms of reference for a study for long-term solutions; hold a public workshop on water levels; enlist participation from Peterborough County on the committee; challenge the 1905 Order in Council, and proceed with a feasibility study on the expansion of the Kawartha Region Conservation Authority. A last resort recommendation is to launch a write-in campaign, he said.

County adopts unilingual stance

The English-only issue is the subject of a passionate debate

After one of the most lively and passionate debates in years, Haliburton County Council endorsed a resolution Wednesday declaring English to be the offical language of the county.

The decision to follow the lead taken by dozens of other municipalities in the province was far from unanimous. Several county councillors implored their fellow members to vote against the resolution, which was introduced by Snowdon Reeve George Simmons. A recorded vote showed eight councillors in favour of the resolution and five against.

Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis initiated the debate. Reading from a prepared statement, he urged county council to reject this declaration of unilingualism.

Council should sit down and look at what type of country it wants, said Davis. Originally Canada was unilingual, he said, "and then we came along."

Although Stanhope Township has not passed a resolution declaring English as its official language, voters in that township provided a strong indication that they oppose increased spending on French language services in the township. A referendum in the last municipal election showed 397 voters opposed to more French while 87 said they would like more.

Referring to this referendum, Davis noted that it was done "long before Bill 8 came up." The provinces French Language Services Act does not apply to municipal services, he said. "We don't even have to worry about it here."

Of the more than 900 municipalities in the province, Davis said only about 40 have passed resolution declaring English as their official language. Some are now going the opposite route, he said, declaring themselves bilingual. "I hope the pendulum is now swinging the other way."

Davis disputed the common argument that these resolutions are based solely on economic factors. "The people of Canada are angry at a lot of things," he said, including the Goods and Services Tax, the ruling on east coast fisheries, the dismantling of the railway and the erosion of transfer payments. If municipalities are willing to accept these actions, he wondered why there is such a backlash against a Bill that has no direct impact on them.

The federal and provincial governments did a poor job of handling this issue, said the Stanhope Reeve. "If you're willing to pass a resolution condemning the governments of the way they handled it, I'm all in favour."

Minden Deputy Reeve Bern Berry spoke in support of the resolution. Although he admitted that Bill 8 does not apply to municipalities, he said it is possible it will have an impact in the future. Berry said he has seen this sort of initiative before, suggesting it is just the start of something that will broaden in the future.

Berry told County council that he had discussed this issue with other members of Minden Council and they are all in favour of an English-only declaration. He said he has also heard from dozens of residents who share his feelings.

Simmons drew council's attention to the fact that 24 per cent of Canadians are illiterate in any language. He contends that more attention should be paid to this and other problems before spending great amounts of money to provide bilingual services.

Glamorgan Reeve Bob McCausland, who seconded the resolution, argued that this bill will, in fact, impact on municipalities. "Somewhere down the line we're paying for it," he said. Whatever the province spends on bilingualism will not be available for other services. McCausland said his support of the resolution is based solely on the costs, noting he has many francophone friends.

Dysart Deputy Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater said he intended not to say anything at this, his first showing at county council.

BE IT RESOLVED that the County of Haliburton in the interests of maintaining goodwill, harmony and sound and responsible fiscal management continue as it has in the past to accept the use of English as the official language of communication with its citizens and all levels of government, thereby demonstrating the concept of equality for each ethnic, clutural and language group in its jurisdiction: AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED in accordance with the provisions of the Municipal Act of Ontario Part VII and more specifically Section 10A of said Act, the council for the County of Haliburton declares English to be the official language of the said County.

The resolution passed here is identical to the one passed by Lutterworth Township Council a few days earlier. Minden Council passed the same resolution on Thursday night, making it the fifth municipality in the Highlands to take this action. Others include Snowdon, Glamorgan and Sherbourne et al.

Cardiff Deputy Reeve Keith Murphy argued against passage of the resolution. The French Language Services Bill "doesn't impact on our communities and until that time it's not warranted," he said. He later questioned the rationale that costs are the major issue here. "If it's the major issue, why haven't we addressed other things, like the GST?"

Simmons, however, said municipalities have to take a stand. "There's no sitting on the fence," the Snowdon Reeve said. Premier David Peterson has called this bill a stepping stone to full bilingualism, said Simmons, adding that bilingualism is "just a dream."

However, he said he has strong feelings on this issue and felt compelled to speak up.

The new deputy reeve said he is proud to be a Canadian and to live in a country that has two official languages.

"We have to accept the principle that we're going to live with two languages," said Leadbeater, "and if we're going to do it, lets do it well." He argued that a resolution of this nature "runs the risk of stirring the fire of bigotry."

Glamorgan Deputy Reeve Glen Madill said he fully supports the resolution on the basis of his speculation that the Bill will apply to municipalities in the future. "Why not say what you think now instead of crying later?" he asked. Madill says the money being spent on bilingual services could be better spent in other areas.

Lutterworth Reeve Carol Puffer had little to say about the resolution. Her township passed the same resolution a few days earlier and on that basis, she said she would vote in favour of it.

Stanhope Deputy Reeve Ann Barker took a different stand than her reeve. "I don't agree with Harry (Davis)," she said. "The people of our township said we don't need it," she said, referring to the referendum.

Lutterworth Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon said he would vote in favour of the resolution. "The government will tell us what to do regardless," he said. "If we don't make it stand now, then where will we be?"

Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman spoke briefly in opposition to the resolution. He said Bill 8 has nothing to do with County Council and he would not support the resolution. He later suggested the vote should be deferred. He noted that three county councillors were absent from the meeting and said they should be given the opportunity to vote on this issue. However, it was noted that full attendance at council meetings is rare and the recommendation to defer the vote was dropped.

County Warden Don Shortreed urged councillors to be fully aware of the possible implications of this resolution. "I would hope everyone has thought this out very thoroughly," he said. "It's a very thorny issue."

Calling it a "media-feeding issue," the Warden said he understands the concerns over costs, but suggested this resolution is not the best way of dealing with the problem.

"I hope you all know and realize what you are doing," he said. "If you're passing it, make sure it's for the right reasons." He said it is important to respect the rights of francophones.

Dysart's deputy reeve had the last word on the matter before it was put to a vote. "I feel strongly that this will be perceived as a decision against human rights," said Leadbeater. In the long run he said he is confident that most muncipalities in the province will be voting in favour of bilingualism. If the resolution is passed, he said "people will be looking at us and saying 'that parochial little group up there in Haliburton, they discriminate against everything.' "

The motion was carried in a recorded vote.

Minden is latest to say 'no' to French

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden has become the latest domino to tumble in the spin-off from Sault St. Marie's decision to declare itself English-only.

At last Thusday's council meeting, Minden councillors unanimously passed a resolution declaring "English as the official language of communication with its citizens and all levels of government."

The resolution is similar to the one passed by four other area municipalites and Haliburton County Council.

Except for a report by Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry about the paasing of the resolution at Wednesday's county council meeting, there was no discussion of the move by Minden council on Thursday.

On Friday, Reeve Ray Moore told The Times that Minden is, in effect, playing "follow the leader" by supporting the province-wide declarations of unilingualism started by Sault Ste. Marie.

Moore said the decision to declare Minden as English-only is to try and counter any future move by the provincial government to impose bilingualism on municipalities.

"The intent of the resolution is to let (Premier) Peterson and the ruling government know that we're not going to be spending billions of dollars to convert Ontario to a bilingual province," said Moore.

Municipalities have begun declaring themselves English-only in reponse to the province's French Language Services Act (Bill 8). The Act says that where there is a sufficient number of francophone residents, the province will provide services in French as well as English.

The Act does not require any municipality to provide any services in French, regardless of francophone population. But Moore says the real concern among municipalities centres on what the province has in store for the future.

"We're not so sure of all this," said Moore. "The provincial government comes in with certain Acts and they are spread all over the place. I guess we are saying we don't trust the provincial government."

Critics have said municipal councils that pass English-only resolutions are bigots, but Moore disagrees and says he doesn't view the move as anti-French.

"There's no bigotry here, says Moore. "That's not the intent what-so-ever." He says that when French Canadians visit the area he makes an effort to communicate in his "limited" French.

He insists it's an economic issue. "I never learned French, and if I had to have French in order to get a job it would be pretty rough," said Moore. "It's a controversial issue, but the whole county is doing it and we're standing firm that we feel we should operate in English."

Family break-ups most serious issue

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Family breakups, single parenthood and drug and alcohol abuse are the most serious problems faced by families in Haliburton County, according to a local survey.

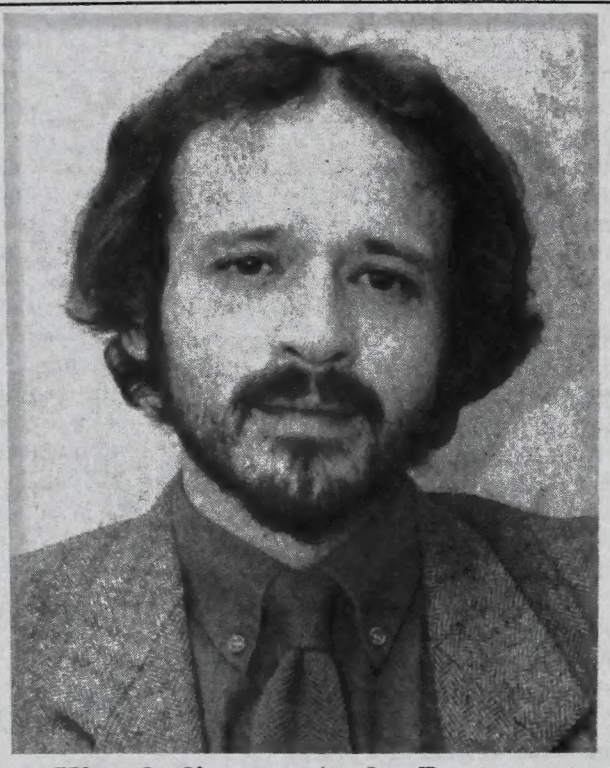
The survey, conducted by the Kinark Child and Family Services office in Haliburton, was carried out to help the agency plan the services it will provide in 1990-1991, says Kinark Director Andre Breton.

The survey was conducted between December 1 and December 15, and of the 229 copies distributed, 110 were completed and returned.

Other problems that ranked near the top include disruptive classroom behaviour, defiance of parent's authority and parental neglect.

Breton also used the survey to find out what Kinark services are considered important by the community. According to the survey, individual and family counselling, individual assessment and consultation with schools and other agencies ranked at the top of the list.

The survey results indicate a strong consensus about which problems and services are considered most important and least important, says Breton. And although the results confirmed much of what Breton had already suspected, they also contained some surprises.



Kinark director Andre Breton

Among the list of services, group counselling ranked at the bottom in terms of importance. Breton says there is a strong indication in the results that individually-oriented treatment is regarded more favourably than group counselling. This despite the fact that service providers in the area are always talking about the need for group counselling, he says.

In analyzing the results the Kinark staff tried to come up with possible explanations for the respondents' attitude towards groups.

One reason, says Breton, may be apprehension about confidentiality. In a group setting, other people will hear about an individual's problems and it's possible that people are afraid these problems will be discussed outside the group setting.

Transportation is another possible explanation for the attitudes towards groups. If meetings are held in Minden or Haliburton, Breton says it may be difficult for people from areas like Dorset or Tory Hill to attend, due to the distances involved.

Breton suggests a third reason for group counselling's poor showing in the survey may be an influence of attitudes from the education system.

In schools, an emphasis is placed on teachers giving individual attention to students when dealing with specific problems. In a classroom setting, Breton says that sort of attitude makes sense. If a student is having trouble with spelling, for example, he says it might be better dealt with on an individual, rather than group, basis.

However Breton defends the role groups play in helping people deal with problems. If a person needs help developing social skills, He says it's more difficult to deal with them on an individual basis.

By their nature, social problems are better dealt within a group setting, says Breton.

Another aspect of group counselling that Breton says makes it effective is the opportunity for people to share their thoughts with other individuals who are experiencing the same difficulties.

"They come to know that they are not the only ones with that specific problem," says Breton. As a treatment process, groups allow people to draw on the support of others and share possible methods of dealing with similar situations.

As a result of the survey results, Breton says his agency will have to try to educate the public about the value of group counselling.

Despite the lack of emphasis placed on group-oriented service in the results, Breton says Kinark still plans to continue offering group counselling sessions when required.

Since the survey was sent out, the agency has had three requests to organize groups proving there still is a demand for this service.

As well as being surprised at how low groups placed in the results, Breton is also surprised at how high consultation with other agencies rated among the list of services.

It ranked in third place, behind individual and family counselling and tied with individual assessment.

This indicates people want to see Kinark act as a resource for teachers and

Election uncertain; Eakins

Amid wide-spread speculation of a provincial election this fall, John Eakins says he will make a decision about his political future when, and if, an election is called.

Speculation of an election call was prompted by remarks made by Premier David Peterson during a recent cabinet meeting in Orillia. Peterson said his government has completed its mandate and is now "looking to the future."

But Eakins told The Times last week nothing definite has been decided and any talk of an election this year is just speculation.

As far as his own plans go, Eakins says he always goes "on the assumption that I will be a candidate," but says he won't be making any decision until an election is called.

Members of Eakins' staff have said the talk around Queen's Park suggests an election in the late summer or early fall.

Kinark will try to help people sooner other agencies. Breton says this sort of service is unusual for the centre because it requires playing an indirect role.

Kinark is already involved in doing some consultations with other agencies, but Breton says the survey indicates people want them to take on a larger role in that capacity.

Responding to this desire may involve setting up regular meetings with those agencies or teachers wanting this type of service, he says.

As far as family breakups being the number one concern of respondants, Breton says this confirms what he already thought.

This finding corresponds with the fact that family counselling and family assessments placed high on the list of important services. "The service people want most is the one we are here for," says Breton.

As for the types of services Kinark offers, Breton says the survey results suggest the centre is "generally on stream" with people's needs.

He suggests the centre is going to have to change the way in which it does business, however, in order to offer the services more effectively.

Over the last year, the agency has faced a crisis situation with an increased demand for services and no increase in funding from the provincial government. This has forced the centre to place people requesting help on a waiting list, and in some cases families have had to wait for as long as three months.

In order to address this problem, Breton says the centre is going to try to deal with people more quickly and give them some sort of support as soon as possible rather than making them wait for months before any kind of help is available.

The survey also gave respondents the chance to list services for families and children which aren't being offered but which they feel should be.

The service most frequently mentioned was sexual abuse counselling. Breton said that until a year ago, no one at Kinark was trained to deal with victims of sexual assault. Now, however, members of the staff have been receiving the necessary training and the agency has employed the service of two consultants who have a lot of experience dealing with the issue.

The centre has been providing some sexual abuse counselling in the past year, but because they were fairly new at it Breton says they wanted to go slowly to ensure they were providing a worthwhile service.

The staff are now at a point where they are comfortable providing the service, says Breton, and the centre will start publicizing it.

Based on the feedback from the surveys, Breton says he thinks the community has a fairly accurate idea of what services the agency provides. But he also says Kinark is being asked to provide a wide variety of services in the child and family services field.

"We're willing to do all these things," says Breton, "but it becomes a matter of meeting with the schools and agencies and arranging some formal agreements." He says in order to make the best use of Kinark's resources, the agency needs some advance notice before setting up new activities and groups.

He hopes to meet with some of the other agencies in the area to see what kind of services they would like and organize a schedule to make the delivery of services "regular and predictable." Such planning he says will be "better for both sides."

"It will help in planning," Breton says. "I hope people will buy into it."

Given the success of the survey, Breton says he would like to run it on a regular basis, perhaps every two years, in order to help Kinark plan its activities.

Novices beat Manvers in overtime

by Janet Horsley

On February 10 Minden Novice "C's" were invited to Bobcaygeon for a hockey tournament.

Their first game was at 10 a.m. against Little Britain. Both teams tried hard and played well. By the third period Minden had a score of 2-0 and were well ahead of the game. But somehow Little Britain had a great comeback, ending the game with a score of 3-2. Nice try guys.

The next game was at 2 p.m. against Ops. Losing the first game meant nothing to Minden. They didn't let it get them down, it just made them play harder. They won the game 4-2. That game led them into the consolation game at 4 p.m.

Goals made by Minden were: Gary Kernohan, assisted by Shane Walker, Jason Horsley, unassisted, Josh Shaw, assisted by Billy Fountain, and Jason Horsley, unassisted.

The consolation game was against Manvers. The teams were battling out in this game, both seeming a little tired by this time of the day. By the third period things didn't look good for Minden. There was only about five minutes left in the game and Manvers was winning 2-0. The Minden fans were worried because there looked to be no luck in sight. But with 4:32 left in the game, Minden finally scored. They did it again when there was only 16 seconds left, forcing the game into overtime.

They set the clock for another five minutes but in just 50 seconds Minden scored again ending, winning the game with a score of 3-2.

Nice team work guys. Goals made by Minden were: Jason Horsley, unassisted, Jason Horsley, assisted by Josh Shaw, Billy Fountain, assisted by Gary Kernohan. MVP of the day went to Jason Horsley.

On Sunday, February 11, Minden was on the road again to play Little Britain. The team still had energy to burn even after Saturday. They just made goal after goal winning the game with a score of 7-1.

Goals made by Minden were: Gary Kernohan, assisted by Paul Daniels, Gary Kernohan, unassisted, Billy Fountain, assisted by Josh Shaw, Billy Fountain assisted by Trevor Cole, and Ryan White, Paul Daniels, assisted by Gary Kernohan, Paul Daniels, assisted by Gary Kernohan, Gary Kernohan, unassisted.

Congratulations to Gary Kernohan for getting a Hat Trick.

On Monday, February 12, Minden was out again, this time to Bobcaygeon. I think by the fifth game, Minden had hardly any energy left to ply. But they still tried hard to win. The goalie played well only allowing only three goals. The game ended with a score of 3-1 for Bobcaygeon.

Nice game Minden, next time we'll get them.

Goals made by Minden were: Josh Shaw, assisted by Jason Horsley.

On Saturday, February 17, Minden travelled to Beaverton. Both teams played well. Each team tried harder each period to win, but both teams were unable to so, ending the game with a tie of 1-1. Nice game guys.

Goal made by Minden went to Paul Daniels, unassisted.

On Sunday, February 18, Minden was on the road again, this time to Manvers. Minden had no trouble beating Manvers this time. The team played well, doing a lot of passing, and in return they just kept setting themselves up for goals. The game ended with a score of 8-2 for Minden.

Goals made for Minden were: Jason Horsley, assisted by Billy Fountain, Paul Daniels, assisted by Ryan White, Jason Horsley, unassisted, Billy Fountain, unassisted, Billy Fountain, assisted by Paul

Taxi operator claims pirates stealing money

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council is looking into revising the township's by-law which regulates the operation of taxi services because of complaints of pirate operators.

Ralph Linstead, who owns and runs Minden Taxi along with his wife Ann, was at last Thursday's council meeting to discuss the problem of unlicenced taxi drivers in Minden.

"They're taking money out of my pocket," said Linstead. His business is one of only two legimate taxi companies operating out of Minden. Chessel Nesbitt has recently bought a licence to operate a second service.

But Linstead's complaints focus on people who are using their cars to run private taxi services without the necessary licences or insurance. He told council that he knows of at least five people operating in this manner.

Minden's existing taxi by-law requires anyone running a taxi service to have each vehicle and each driver licensed by the municipality. Taxi services must also maintain a stand or office with an appropriate sign, and have a listed telephone.

All vehicles used as taxis in Minden must be insured for at least $500,000 against public liability and property damage. The cars must have the name of the owner and a schedule of rates displayed in a "conspicuous" location in the car's interior. They must also have a meter which automatically registers fees.

The maximum fine for breaking the by-law is $100.

At the request of Linstead, Minden's by-law enforcement officer, Tom Hubercheck, reviewed the by-law and suggested an increase in the amount of the fine to make the by-law more effective.

Instead of a total fine of $100, Hubercheck suggested a fine of $100 for each regulation that is not adhered to. A person who is operating a service that contravenes all 20 regulations in the by-law could be liable for a maximun penalty of $2,000.

If he's going to follow up on Linstead's complaints about pirate taxis, Hubercheck said he will need a by-law with "impact."

Linstead said he encountered a situation a couple of years ago where a older man was using his car to run a private, unlicenced taxi service. Linstead confronted the man, who then called the police and said Linstead had threated him. Linstead said the police told him the man was "just an old guy trying to make a few extra bucks."

"That's fine, I don't begrudge anyone making money," Linstead told council. "But it's coming out of my pocket."

Linstead has given Hubercheck the names of the people he suspects of operating pirate taxis. Hubercheck says he wants to contact the municipal lawyer to see what can be done about it. "I don't know any of these people," said Hubercheck. "I may be out of line sending them threatening letters."

Councillor Mike Maher said there might be some difficulty in proving people are running unlicensed taxis.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry agreed. "If I drive Lewis to the corner and say 'give me three dollars for gas,' am I a taxi?," he asked.

Reeve Ray Moore said he wouldn't be surprised to find out a fair amount of people are using their cars to run illegal taxi services. "If money is involved we have to classify it as a taxi," he said.

Council agreed to study the by-law further and see what changes might be necessary.

Minden Tykes win game against Haliburton

by Janet Horsley

On February 10 the Minden Tykes had their first exhibition game of the year against Haliburton.

The two teams were very well matched. Each player tried his or her hardest to get his stick on the puck and take it down the ice without losing it.

The puck itself was the most abused person on the ice, but they did well, ending the game with a score of 12-3 for Minden.

Goals made by Minden were: Jamie Collis, unassisted, Adam Tomlinson, assisted by Curtis Danilko, Rich Kinsmen, assisted by Adam Tomlinson, Jonathon Horsley, unassisted, Andy Kinsmen, assisted by Nick Mitchell, Adam Tomlinson, unassisted, Andy Kinsmen, unassisted, Jonathon Horsley, assisted by Curtis Danilko, Ben Carpenter, assisted by Rich Kinsmen, Adam Tomlinson, unassisted, Andy Kinsmen, assisted by Adam Tomlinson. Hat tricks go out to: Adam Tomlinson, Jonathon Horsley, and Andy Kinsmen. Congratulations boys, you did a fine job.

Saturday, February 17 Minden Tykes were guests at Wilberforce. The first team of Tykes that played were the boys that were under seven. (For Minden). The two teams seemed well matched. It was a well battled out game. The ending score was 4-1 for Wilberforce. Nice try Minden.

Goal made by Minden went to Adam Tomlinson,

On Tuesday, February 20, Minden was hosted by Oakwood. Both teams played well in the first two periods, but Oakwood played the best. At the end of the second period, Oakwood was ahead by two.

In the third period, the Minden fans gave their all which seemed to work because Minden pulled up their socks to win the game with a score of 4-1.

Goals made by Minden were: Gary Kernohan, assisted by Paul Daniels and Shane Walker, Paul Daniels, assisted by Shane Walker and Matthew Mynard, Trever Cole, assisted by Josh Shaw, and Billy Fountain, assisted by Ryan White.

FISHING CHART

As the moon moves across Canada each day and night, so do the periods of tidal/lunar influence on fish and game. The chart indicates the peak of lunar influence and feeding activity in your time zone. Each morning and afternoon, the period of activity from approximately one hour before to one hour after the recommended peak time on the chart. Plan your fishing (or hunting) periods around the recommended times and, weather permitting, you should enjoy above-average success. An asterisk pinpoints the best days of the month.

Leo McCarthy was speaking at the Bancroft Haliburton Industrial Training Committee luncheon and planning session held at the Wig-A-Mog Inn last week.

Skills development key to survival

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The key to survival for small business in the area is skills development, the Bancroft Haliburton Industrial Training Committee has been told.

Leo McCarthy was the guest speaker at a luncheon held by the committee at the Wig-A-Mog Inn last Wednesday and he told members about the role that specialized training can play in helping small businesses grow and prosper.

McCarthy has spent the last year spearheading the Community Business Initiative (CBI), a program which provides training for small businesses.

In the past 10 years McCarthy said small business in Canada hasn't so much grown "as it has exploded." McCarthy quoted a report prepared by the Minister of State responsible for Small Businesses that found that between 1978 and 1988 280,000 new Canadian firms were created, bring the total number of businesses in Canada to 880,000. Of those, McCarthy said that 98 per cent are small businesses, defined as those employing less than 100 people.

In Haliburton County, McCarthy said there are about 960 registered businesses, and the situation in Bancroft is very similar.

In the Haliburton-Bancroft area, McCarthy said small businesses play an important role in the economy and are responsible for a large majority of employment.

Despite the large increase in new businesses, McCarthy said only about 30 per cent of small businesses in Ontario survive their first five years. And those companies that do survive rarely grow beyond the micro stage.

Only three per cent of the firms started in 1974 had grown to employ over 20 people by 1982, said McCarthy.

"We are going to have find a way to help reverse these statistics," he said. "Growth in small business start-ups is meaningless if these businesses do not go on to grow and prosper."

Although lack of adequate finances is often cited as a reason for small business failure, McCarthy said there are enough investment funds available through government programs, financial institutions and private investors that "financing is not as important as it's made out to be."

In large corporations, McCarthy said people are grouped according to their speciality whether it's accounting, marketing, sales or advertising. But entrepreneurs running a small business can't concentrate on the aspect of the business they are most comfortable with. They must develop skills in all elements of their operation.

Rinks from Lindsay and Avonlea fought it out in the semi-finals of the 'B' side of the SOLCA Intermediate Regional curling competition at the Haliburton Curling Club last Tuesday afternoon. Mary McKay's team from Avonlea edged Pat Reid's Lindsay rink in this match to advance to the finals against yet another Lindsay rink, skipped by Kathy Brumwell. Brumwell's rink came out on top in the finals to earn a chance to advance to the Southern Ontario Finals next month. Winning the 'A' side of the competition and also advancing is the the Oshawa rink, skipped by Rita Wrubel.

SWEEP!!!

The Intermediate Ladies' competition in curling for Region 1 was the scene of some exciting and sharp curling during the three-day event at the Haliburton Curling Club last week.

The eight teams competing in the double-knock-out format were the winners from the four local zone competitions held earlier this month in Campbellford, Lindsay, Oshawa and Scarborough.

Catherine Kellet, Southern Ontario Ladies Curling Association (SOLCA) Zone 3 representative, says the calibre of curling at this level was very high. The team from the Oshawa Curling Club, skipped by Riata Wrubel won the A side of the competition while Kathy Brumwell's Lindsay rink won the B side.

Both teams will advance to the Southern Ontario Finals at Ilderton Curling Club, near London, on March 5 to 8.

Rita Wrubel's Oshawa rink was the winner of the A side of the Zone 3 SOLCA curling competition at the Haliburton Curling Club early last week. Shown here are Darlene Jenkins (second), Lenore Coulson (lead), Donna Mayer (vice) and Rita Wrubel (skip) This rink, along with Kathy Brumwell's rink from Lindsay, will now go on to play in the Southern Ontario Championships in March.

Staff development is an investment and consultants, is one method of dealing with lack of expertise in a certain area, but McCarthy said those services can be very expensive.

Some entrepreneurs may take on partners to pick-up the areas they are weak in, but McCarthy said it's not a good idea for a business owner to overrely on other people.

"At the end of the month they should be able to read their financial statement and know whether or not a profit has been turned," he said.

"Too often small business operators forget that staff development is an investment," said McCarthy. "They need to invest in their own training on a regular basis." He said planning, organizing and staffing are all important skills that entrepreneurs need to develop.

"Entrepreneurs aren't wholly to blame for their lack of development," said McCarthy. "Scores of entrepreneurs have college and university degrees and many regularly attend seminars. Yet traditional learning credentials don't make the difference."

He outlined some of the inadequacies of traditional training methods. He said seminars and workshops are often inflexible and are not tailored to the needs of the participants.

Also the time involve d with some courses is prohibitive, said McCarthy. Some courses require attendance one or two nights a week over a period of several months and finding the time to attend and to do the resulting homework is often impossible.

The third area that McCarthy said most courses and seminars fall short in is implementation. They provide the theory but small business owners may find it difficult to apply the material to their own operation if their business isn't a textbook example, he said.

"These factors often leave small business owners with the feeling that they have only come half-way in their efforts to upgrade knowledge and skills," McCarthy said.

Industrial training committee members took time out of their busy schedule on Wednesday to honour one of their own. Committee Chairman Ann Larcade, left, presents Rhonda Elstone with a plaque in recognition of her hard work, contribution to the committee and an excellence attendance record at meetings.

"Too often small business operators forget that staff development is an investment," Leo McCarthy told the CITC.

The Federal Business Development Bank (FBDB) recognized this trend in its customers who wanted a training program into which they had input regarding content and timeframe.

This led to the development of the Community Business Initiative in 1986. Under the program, a community is identified which would benefit from a training program for small businesses. The FBDB meets with established business owners and recruits 30 to 35 non-competing small businesses to participate in the program.

Over the course of the year, these businesses are offered 10 workshops, each running three to four hours, followed by 10 visits for individual counselling which help the entrepreneurs implement what they have learned.

McCarthy will soon be completing the year he has spent managing the Community Business Initiative for 31 businesses in the Haliburton-Bancroft area, which was sponsored by the industrial training committee.

During the last year the CBI has offered workshops covering topics like inventory control, understanding financial statments, customer relations and dealing with bankers.

There are two workshops left in March, one on marketing and one on customer service.

During the last year, McCarthy said he's found that the problems faced by local businesses are no different than those faced by businesses in other parts of the province.

He said the most important skill a small business owner can develop is the ability to market his operation. The most common complaint by customers is that they are not treated as individuals by the business.

"If small businesses can make inroads in customer service they will have an unbeatable competitive edge," said McCarthy.

During the question period after his presentation, McCarthy was asked about the stability of the current economic situation. He said that although there will probably be an economic slow down in 1990 and 1991 there is still a real need for products and services and "lots of money out there."

He said he doesn't think there will be a great recession.

Given the success of last year's session, McCarthy said an effort will be made to run the training program again.

He thanked the members of the Bancroft-Haliburton Industrial Training Committee, "as a resident of Haliburton" for the contribution the committee has made to the economic growth of the county. The important work done by the volunteers who serve on the committee is sometimes overlooked, said McCarthy.

Nicholl's Novices beat Minden Novice "B"s

After a lengthy break, the Minden Novice "B's" took to the ice on February 20.

They were home to the Nicholl's Novice Team. In previous scheduled games, Minden had been able to defeat this team, but this time Haliburton was out to win.

Until the middle of the second period, Haliburton had them 3-0. The Monarchs kept plugging away and by the end of the second, they had narrowed the margin to 3-2, with a pair by Mitch Johnson, both assisted by Shawn Casey and Colin MacKenzie.

At the half-way mark of the third period, Haliburton slipped another one in, ending the game with a 4-2 score.

The previous weekend these boys were treated to an exciting weekend in Toronto, where they not only took in a Leaf's game, but were able to go Saturday morning to watch them in their pre-game practice. They were able to meet and get autographs from many of the players.

They were picked up on Friday night from school by their coaching staff and after several minor incidents arrived safe and sound at their hotel. The next afternoon, the parents arrived to take "partial" charge.

Special thanks goes to Andy MacKenzie for arranging the trip for the boys and their families. Also thanks to Duane Lennie, Ivan Ingram and Brian Ladurantaye for being responsible for our crew and Sid Stamp Fuels for donating "Leaf" bannerettes for each team member. It was a great weekend.

The Minden Novice B Monarchs got a glimpse of the big time a couple of weeks ago when they travelled to Toronto to watch the Maple Leafs in action. The Monarchs even got a chance to meet some of their favourite players.

The Monarchs battle hard against Haliburton

THANK YOU

On Saturday, February 17 the Minden Monarch Novice B team visited Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. The team attended the Leafs' pre-game skate followed by an autograph session. In the evening the team attended the game between the Leafs and New Jersey Devils. The second game for Minden, seven-year-old Tykes and some of the other younger ones, was an experience only. They played a Novice team and we would like to say they played well with good sportsmanship and the will to continue trying to score. Unfortunately we were unable to score with Wilberforce winning with a score of 20-0.

Since winning this snowblower in the Minden Legion's raffle a few weeks ago, Sybil has been almost looking forward to more of the white stuff so that she or her husband, Bill, could try out the new machinery. For Your Service

by Dave McAdam, Legion Branch 636

AS I begin writing, I only hope I will be able to squeeze in the many events past and future which need to be reported at this time.

Members should all try to attend the next General Meeting on March 7 at 7:30 p.m. when nominations for executive and officers of your branch will be held. The executive is nominated from Ordinary, Associate or Life Members who have been 636 members for at least one year. Officers can be nominated from members who have been executives for one year. Should a member wish nomination but cannot attend the meeting, he or she should leave written consent with the branch for such.

The April 4 General Meeting will be preceded by a pot luck supper. During this meeting the elections will take place for the executive and officers who will serve June 1 until May 31, 1991.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT BOARD

Ontario

IN THE MATTER OF the Environmental Assessment Act, R.S.O. 1980, c.140, as amended, and the regulations thereunder;

–and–

IN THE MATTER OF the Intervenor Funding Project Act, 1988, S.O. 1988, c.71;

–and–

IN THE MATTER OF an Undertaking by Ontario Hydro consisting of a Program in respect of activities associated with meeting future electricity requirements in Ontario.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TAKE NOTICE THAT A PUBLIC HEARING WILL BE HELD TO CONSIDER ONTARIO HYDRO'S PROPOSED PROGRAM FOR MEETING FUTURE ELECTRICITY REQUIREMENTS IN ONTARIO, AND RELATED MATTERS.

AND TAKE NOTICE THAT IF YOU DO NOT ATTEND AT THE HEARING OR MAKE A WRITTEN REPRESENTATION, THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT BOARD MAY PROCEED WITH THE HEARING IN YOUR ABSENCE AND YOU WILL NOT BE ENTITLED TO ANY FURTHER NOTICE IN THESE PROCEEDINGS.

PLEASE EXAMINE THIS NOTICE CAREFULLY.

YOU MAY BE AFFECTED BY THE OUTCOME OF THIS HEARING.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

Ontario Hydro has published a Demand/Supply Plan Report setting out proposals to ensure that a continuing reliable electricity supply is provided in Ontario. That Report, and its Environmental Analysis, have been submitted for review under the Environmental Assessment Act.

Each alternative Demand/Supply Plan includes:
- management of the demand for electricity;
- non-utility generation;
- rehabilitation and retirement of generating stations;
- redevelopment, extensions and new developments at eleven hydraulic generation sites;
- the purchase of electrical power and energy from Manitoba; and,
- new fossil and nuclear generation.

The approval being requested is set out in Chapter 19 of the Demand/Supply Plan Report, and pertains to:

a) the requirement and rationale for transmission in Ontario to incorporate purchases from Manitoba; and,

b) the requirement and rationale for specified generation and transmission facilities, including nuclear, fossil and hydraulic generation.

The approval requested in this application relates only to the requirement and rationale for additional facilities. Site-specific issues and construction approvals will be the subject of future applications. Locations to be considered for new facilities will include at least those locations shown on the map included in this notice, as well as additional locations which may be identified following siting studies.

Additional radial transmission facilities would be required to connect new generation into the power system. The transmission connections required for each of the alternative generation sites are set out in the Environmental Assessment documentation.

A copy of the Demand/Supply Plan Report may be obtained from:

REVIEW OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

The Minister of the Environment has:

a) instructed that a review be prepared of the Environmental Assessment, pursuant to Section 7(1)(a) of the Environmental Assessment Act; and,

b) required that the Environmental Assessment Board hold a hearing in respect of the matters set out in Section 12(2)(c), (d) and (e) of the Environmental Assessment Act.

Upon completion, the Review of the Environmental Assessment will be made public. A Notice advertising the completion of the Review will be published by the Minister in or about June, 1990.

POWERS OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT BOARD

The purpose of the Environmental Assessment Board Main Hearing is to enable the Environmental Assessment Board to make a decision regarding:

i) the acceptance or amendment and acceptance of the environmental assessment;

ii) whether approval to proceed with the undertaking in respect of which the environmental assessment was submitted, should or should not be given; and,

iii) whether the approval mentioned in clause (ii) should be given subject to terms and conditions and, if so, the provisions of such terms and conditions.

TIME AND PLACE OF PRELIMINARY HEARING

The Environmental Assessment Board will convene:

AT: Hearing Room 1, 2nd Floor, 5 Park Home Avenue, North York (at North York Civic Centre subway stop)

ON: 4 April, 1990

AT: 9:00 a.m.

for the purpose of dealing with preliminary and procedural matters, including, but not necessarily restricted to:

a) identification of the parties;

b) identification of issues;

c) arranging for the exchange among parties of documents relevant to the issues;

d) establishing a procedure for filing witness statements;

e) the schedule for the hearing; and,

f) setting and announcing the dates and location(s) for the presentation of evidence to the Environmental Assessment Board.

NO EVIDENCE OR OPENING STATEMENTS WILL BE GIVEN AT THE PRELIMINARY HEARING.

FUNDING FOR INTERVENORS

A PARTY IN THIS PROCEEDING MAY APPLY TO THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT BOARD PURSUANT TO PART I OF THE INTERVENOR FUNDING PROJECT ACT, 1988, FOR INTERVENOR FUNDING.

At the Preliminary Hearing on 4 April, 1990, the Board will decide which persons who have applied for party or intervenor status will be granted such status and the Board will set a deadline for receipt of applications for funding for those persons granted status.

ONLY THOSE PERSONS WHO ARE GRANTED STATUS AS A PARTY OR AN INTERVENOR WILL BE ELIGIBLE FOR INTERVENOR FUNDING.

Following the Board's determination of which persons will be granted party or intervenor status, a Funding Panel will be appointed under the Intervenor Funding Project Act, 1988. In accordance with the criteria set out in that Act, the Funding Panel will consider the funding applications and will determine whether, to whom, and in what amounts funding will be granted to the intervenors and parties who applied for funding.

At the completion and publication of the Review by the Minister of the Environment, the Board may reconvene the Preliminary Hearing to identify any additional persons who may then wish to seek status as parties or intervenors and to set another deadline for receipt of applications for funding for those persons granted such status on that occasion. Those applications will also be determined by the Funding Panel in accordance with the criteria set out in the Intervenor Funding Project Act, 1988.

IF YOU INTEND TO SEEK STATUS AS A PARTY OR INTERVENOR AT THE HEARING

If you intend to seek status as a party or an intervenor at the Preliminary Hearing whether or not you intend to apply for intervenor funding, you are asked to complete the enclosed registration form and forward it to the Board Secretary by 13 March, 1990. You should also obtain the Environmental Assessment Board's Rules of Practice from the Office of the Environmental Assessment Board at 2300 Yonge Street, Suite 1201, Toronto, Ontario, M4P 1E4 (telephone: (416) 323-4806; fax: (416) 323-4997).

IF YOU DO NOT INTEND TO SEEK STATUS AS A PARTY OR INTERVENOR

If you do not wish to participate in the Preliminary Hearing but do wish to receive a copy of the Environmental Assessment Board's Order resulting from the Preliminary Hearing, telephone collect (416) 323-4806 or complete the enclosed registration form and mail it to the Board Secretary.

It is your responsibility to contact the Board Secretary to determine the dates, times and location for the Hearing as it proceeds. The Environmental Assessment Board accepts collect calls. A toll-free information number will be available during the Hearing to provide pre-recorded information as to the status of the proceedings. Notice of the time, date and location of the Main Hearing will also appear in various Ontario newspapers at least one month in advance of the commencement of the Main Hearing.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Environmental Assessment Board will give notice of its decision and reasons by placing them in the record of public hearing.

DATED at Toronto this 15th day of February, 1990.

"James Curren"
Board Secretary

(Pour obtenir une copie du present avis en français, communiquer avec le secrétaire de la Commission au (416) 323-4806.)

Site-specific issues and construction approvals will be the subject of future applications. Locations to be considered for new facilities will include at least the following:

News bulletin renamed The Blue Beret success. We believe it relieved some of those winter blahs. On March 10 we are again looking for an enjoyable time at our St. Patrick's Dance and hope for a larger turnout. The date for this was advanced from March 17 not to conflict with one of the major curling and social events at M.C.C.

On March 11, some of us will be attending the Zone F4 Convention at Branch 67 Lindsay. If any members wish to attend, please advise president Sally Bonner so she can know how many to expect.

March 22 the Legion Youth Public Speaking competition is being held at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Members, including Fraternal Affiliates, are welcome toa ttend. As I said at our last meeting, I have been pleasantly surprised by hearing the talent displayed by the students. The competition is anything but dull and we urge you to attend and support the kids. Would you also, if possible, wear your uniforms.

Our quarterly bulletin which will again soon be published, will have a new name. The "Informer" we learned is in use by the branch in Bowmanville. Our membership, after much deliberation, has decided to name it "The Blue Beret". Members with literary or poetic talent or with items of Legion interest are requested to submit such by contacting Comrade Lyn Winans at 286-2208. She is seeking content now.

In sports, chairman Ken Wallace has been busy with his euchre, cribbage, bowling and snooker teams. The team of Comrades Ed Guertin, Kim Hewitt, Murray MacKinnon and Harris Steele again captured the Zone F4 trophy for 636. On January 27 the tournament was hosted by Haliburton Branch 129 who have two regulation size tables. Our team was informed that the District Competition was to be held February 17. Someone at District advanced the tournament to February 3 without notice to our Zone sports officer. As a result, our team and others were not given an opportunity to compete at district. This matter is to be discussed at our next executive meeting. We feel our players should at least receive an explanation from the district sports officer as to why they were not notified of the new date.

Zone F euchre, played February 3 at Omemee Branch, saw our team of Comrades Gwen Cox, John James, Murray MacKinnon and Gladys Wruth tie for third. Our team of Comrades Jim Bradbury, Jim Irwin, Marion Irwin and Bill Kleinschmidt tied for fifth. John James had the most lone hands. These two teams now advance to the district tournament on May 12 in Marmora.

In Zone F4 bowling, February 4 in Lindsay, our team of Comrades May Bradbury, Frank Codlin, Gwen Cox, John James, Jack Sykes and Ken Walsh came third. Comrades Frank and Ken also took a first in the doubles and Lee Oster first in the singles. They advance to district bowling in Oshawa on February 24.

In the Zone cribbage, February 10 at Branch 129 Haliburton, our team of Comrades Gwen Cox, John James, Murray MacKinnon and Gladys Wruth took second place. They are now entitled to advance to the district tournament on March 10 in Campbellford.

Congratulations to all those Comrades who competed and especially those who qualified to advance from Zone to District competitions. They have elevated our status by involving our branch in friendly competition with the other branches within our Zone and District.

Branch 636 wishes to congratulate Minden resident Sybil Roodenburg on winner the draw for the 8 h.p. Noma Snowblower which we have delivered to her.

Minden Atom A defeat was a battle to the end

The Minden Atom A team met Ops Sunday for their last playoff game, which turned out to be a running battle to the end.

Although Minden was defeated by a 9-6 score, they had no reason to be down.

Ops scored in the first few minutes of play, but Minden came straight back with a goal from Dennis Woods assisted by Andrew McKelvey and Jeremy Durkin.

We were to see this action during most of the game. Ops scored a second goal with Minden close behind with their second goal, scored by David Raback and assisted by Jeff Wray.

Minden's third goal was scored by Andrew McKelvey and assisted by Chris Eskilen and Tommy Bagshaw. Ops was not to be left out and came back with their third goal, and with seconds of the second period left, Ops scored a fourth goal.

The third period was to be just as exciting. Ops came out strong and scored a fifth goal with Minden on their heels with their fourth goal, which was excellently set up by Tommy Bagshaw, and was scored by Dennis Woods.

Minden's fifth goal was scored by Jeff Wray from a pass by David Raback, but Ops proved to be the stronger of the teams, coming back to score their sixth and seventh goals.

The Minden team was not to be left out and kept up the pressure when Chris Eskilen scored from a pass by Jeff Wray and Jeremy Durkin.

Minden's goalie Justin Rowden played a great game. Three of Ops' goals were deflections.

With a 9-6 loss, Minden had nothing to be ashamed of, they all played well.

The war to be waged on illiteracy in the county promises to be a major battle

From a modest office at the back of the Employment Services Centre in Haliburton, Barbara Nangle is preparing to take on the enormous task co-ordinating the fight against illiteracy in this county.

Every Monday morning for the past few weeks, Nangle has arrived at the tiny office—slightly more than a closet with a desk and filing cabinet—for a full day of fielding phone calls, matching clients with volunteer tutors and providing guidance and reference material.

One day a week seems hardly enough to tackle this hidden problem. However, it's more than has been offered in the past and Nangle says she is confident that, along with the volunteers, she can help make some progress.

Illiteracy is world-wide issue which is surprisingly common in Canada and probably moreso in Haliburton County.

"Canada has a problem," Victoria-Haliburton MP Bill Scott noted in recent column. Surprisingly, 24 per cent of Canadians can't read, write or manipulate numbers well enough to meet the literacy demands of modern society, he wrote.

Nangle, who began work on January 11, has no doubt the percentage of illiterate persons in the Highlands is as high, if not higher, than the national average.

"I would think there is a need for this service in this county," Nangle said in an interview last week. Because of the isolation of this area and the traditional employment opportunities which had little call for reading or writing, she suspects the rate of illiteracy here is higher than average, especially among older people. "You don't have to read to cut wood," she said, referring to the industry that initially opened this area up.

Nangle is employed by the John Howard Society of Victoria-Haliburton, which received funding from the Ministry of Skills Development to initiate a literacy program here. The program is open to any adults who wish to improve their reading, writing, comprehension or spelling skills. This is achieved by matching people with volunteer tutors to work on a one-to-one basis with them to achieve whatever goals they set for themselves.

There is no charge for the service and confidentiality is assured.

One of the tasks Nangle must achieve is to encourage those who need help to come forward. People don't willingly admit to being illiterate, she said. Instead, they manage to mask their inability to read or write by developing other skills.

Illiteracy is not a sign of lack of intelligence, says Nangle. On the contrary, she says many are incredibly clever people. The fact that they can cope in a world that relies so heavily on the written word is evidence of this.

Newspapers, menues, maps, all convey information to people through the written word. If you can't read the words, "it can be a pretty scary world," says Nangle.

"It's an impossible task to get by and yet people do it."

Often, Nangle says she finds that illiterate people have developed enviable memory skills to help them get through day-to-day life. Since they can't rely on notes to jog their memories, they have to remember things the first time they are told.

"They're not stupid people," she says. "They may be uneducated formally, but there are various forms of education in this world."

Still, Nangle says there is a stigma attached to being illiterate. Often, she says, illiterate people have a low self esteem, relating illiteracy to inadequacy. Learning to read helps them to build self confidence, she says.

Star Wars character Yoda's message is clear: "Read and the force is with you." Haliburton County's literacy program co-ordinator Barbara Nangle wants everyone in the Highlands to have the force with them.

Although Nangle has been on the job for only a few weeks, the program was already established here by the John Howard Society. She says there are a number of clients already at work improving their skills, there are sufficient tutors and plenty of resource material. Nangle says that, ideally, she would like to have a few more trained tutors to ensure that good matches can be assured, but it's not a problem right now.

Although Nangle is employed on a temporary contract at this time, she is hopeful the program will be extended and perhaps expanded as more clients come forward for help. Since 1990 has been declared Intenational Year of Literacy, she hopes attention will be drawn to this issue, encouraging people come forward.

In addition to her work in co-ordinating this program, Nangle says she is available to go out and talk to groups, service organizations or anyone interested in hearing about this problem and the help being provided.

Conservation is the answer

Sources of electrical energy other than dams have their own environmental deficits.

Coal — and gas-fired power plants generate carbon, sulfur and nitrogen compounds, heavy metals and particulates that contribute to global warming, acid rain and atmospheric pollution.

Disposal of radioactive wastes from nuclear plans has yet to be solved.

There have been several government studies on different aspects of energy.

In January 1988, the federal standing committee on environment and forestry reported that the 12,400 metric tonnes of highly radioactive spent fuel from nuclear plants in 1987 will grow to 100,000 tonnes by 2024, even though "there is still no proven method of disposing of this highly radioactive material." The committee recommended a nuclear moratorium until the waste issue is resolved.

Another study was commissioned by the energy departments of the federal and eight provincial governments to determine the consequences of reducing carbon dioxide emission by 20 per cent in 15 years as recommended by the 1988 global atmosphere conference in Toronto.

The report was kept secret but leaked in December.

To meet the 20-per-cent reduction target, the study estimated we would have to invest $74 billion, but it would result in an astounding net saving of $150 billion!

But growth is equated with progress and is perceived as both inevitable and desirable.

Since 1984, electrical demand in Ontario has increased by about 5 per year.

However, growth is predicted to drop to about 2.5 per cent per annum (which would still double use in only 28 years).

The cost of steady growth, long the holy grail of politicians and economists alike, is degradation of the environment.

Yet in December, Ontario Hydro announced its 25-year plan to meet projected demands with a massive expansion of its generating capacity including 10 more nuclear plants and 32 burning fossil fuels.

But a 1989 report to the Ontario energy minister on the impact of energy conservation on reduction of acid rain showed that a 25 per cent decrease in energy use could easily be achieved by the year 2000.

More efficient use of energy can save more than two times the output of the four nuclear plants at the Darlington facilities.

Just getting the commercial sector alone to install the most efficient fluorescent lightbulb can eliminate the need for the amount of energy provided by two nuclear reactors or four coal plants at a price far lower than building two nuclear plants.

Consider the environmental returns from a single 18 watt compact fluorescent lightbulb - it gives the same amount of light as a 75 watt incadescent bulb, lasts 13 times longer and saves the production of one tonne of C02, eight kilograms of S02, plus nitrogen compounds, heavy metals and particulates needed to light the old bulb.

And energy conservation is clean, safe and waste-free.

Our government's own studies show that vast amounts of energy can be found through conservation and that huge sums of money can be returned both to the taxpayer and to servicing the debt.

COUNTY OF HALIBURTON LOAD RESTRICTIONS

Let us cultivate the 3 R's: Reduce, Reuse and Recycle.

1. Use cloth diapers instead of disposable; cloth napkins instead of paper serviettes; handkerchiefs instead of tissues; tea towels instead of paper towels.

2. Don't buy products that are excessively packaged, such as single size servings of meat, cosmetics in elaborate containers, liquor in fancy boxes. Buy products in bulk or economy packs.

3. Reuse plastic grocery bags, taking them back to the supermarket every time you shop.

4. Take advantage of recycling in our community by taking newspapers, tin cans, glass bottles to our recycling bins.

5. Use pesticide sprays made of steeped garlic and tobacco to repel hungry garden bugs.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family and friends of Hazel Hoskins and Hugh McEachern who passed away recently.

Women's Day commemorated

On Thursday, March 8 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., women of Haliburton County will gather at the West Guilford Community Centre to commemorate International Women's Day with a pot luck supper and entertainment.

The intent of the event is to bring together women of all ages from around the county for a warm, lighthearted look at women's roles. International Women's Day has been observed since the early part of the century. March 8 each year has been designated as a day for this celebration.

Each woman is invited to bring a favourite dish to share and her own eating utensils. The evening will be hosted by Eleanor Cooper. Catherine Denholm, Eliza O'Neil, and Caroline Bishop will give personal views of women past, present and future.

Entertainment will include music by "Precious Friends", Dianne Hagerman and Janice Benoit. Anyone attending the evening is invited to share a special talet—singing, music, skits, poetry—which reflects the experiences of women.

The evening is free for any women (and children) interested in attending. Flexible child care can be arranged in advance, on site, by calling Caroline Bishop 457-4565 or 754-2255. Transportation can be arranged by calling Cheryl Cathcart 457-2989 or 754-3530 or Dianne Hagerman 754-3127. For further information regarding entertainment or the evenings events, please call any of the above listed numbers.

Lottery profits help hospitals.

On the night of the car accident, Bruce was not expected to live. Fortunately, a specially equipped and staffed trauma unit was ready and standing by at a nearby hospital. This special facility helped Bruce beat the odds and he has returned to work.

Helping hospitals is just one way lottery profits are used.

Lottery profits are also used to provide grants in other areas such as helping people with disabilities.

They also help fund sports and recreation, arts and culture, and province-wide charities.

This is how Lottery funds are working for you in your area.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Hello Sr. League Readers,

We surely had a mixture of weather again. By other reports, we were very lucky.

Thursday was tea party time. We had the Sarah Group from the United Church, Minden bring the lunch and serve it. We all enjoyed the lovely lunch and had a nice social time together. Thank you, we appreciated your coming very much.

Thursday evening, Ed Fomenko called bingo for us. We thank him for an enjoyable evening as usual, some lost, some won.

Friday afternoon there was Happy Hour as usual. To entertain those who attended, Doris was at the piano, Don White on violin, Charlie Hadley on the bass fiddle and Bill Payne on guitar and singing. The volunteers who served the residents and their friends were Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemin, Linda English and Mel Robertson. We thank you all for an entertaining afternoon.

Thursday we welcomed a new resident, Mrs. Vera Archer of Haliburton. We sincerely hope she will be happy here.

Hyland Crest sends its condolences to the families and friends of Hazel Hoskins who passed away February 16, 1990 and also to those of Mr. Hugh McEachern who passed away February 17, 1990.

Alice Todd went to Jim and Barb Todd's where they had a birthday dinner by candlelight because the hydro went off.

The residents of Hyland Crest would like to thank Heidi Mayer immensely for her thoughtfulness in sending a carton of potato chips to us. They are very much appreciated.

Heather Coneybeare was here to visit her husband's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Oliver on Monday.

Monday evening Allan and Ruth Rice came to show movies. There were eight residents present. The movies were "Family Robinsons", "Behind the Scenes" (the life of Toller Cranston) and "Hobby of Stanley" (a man who was a beautiful whistler). They were very enjoyable and we thank Allan and Ruth for showing them to us.

Sunday evening Rev. John Burgess led the c hapel service. Alice Jones was unable to attend and we missed her and the organ very much.

Saturday, Terry and Norma Barnum took me to Peterborough to see my sister, May Cameron who Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

An ode to postman Dalbert Rogers

This poem, submitted by Florence Robinson, was written by her brother Roy Rogers in 1926. Although the postman in the poem is referred to as "Jimmy", Mrs. Robinson says the ode was written to honour their father Dalbert Rogers, who collected the mail in Gelert from the train and delivered it to the Minden post office.

THE MAIL MUST GO THROUGH

In these days of mail strikes
For big pay hikes
What with sick time off
Every time they cough
They must have a car if they go as far as a mile or so
Such a spoiled bunch
They have to go back in for lunch
Mail service is more slow
Than it was years ago.

Now there was a time which I recall
So in this poem I will tell it all
To you, about the days when the mailman's ways
Was, The Mail Must Go Through.
There was a small village
In an isolated location
A full eight miles from the Nearest railway station
Where the mail would arrive
And it would be there
To this I'll swear
Whether the mailman was dead or alive.
But there was still those eight miles to go
Before the villagers would know
That the mail had arrived.
In the summer time it was a pleasant drive
On a road over the hills
But it was in the winter and spring that the mailman
Got his thrills.
In the winter when the snow lay deep
While the villagers were still asleep
The mailman was on his way
With a fast team hitched to a sleigh.
Over those snowbanks he must go
To be at the station, before the train would blow
Its whistle, to let you know

had just come home from the hospital. When we got there she had been taken back to hospital, I saw her for a few minutes.

Tuesday morning service was taken by Rev. Ed Moll of the United Church, Minden. Thank you Rev. Moll.

Tuesday afternoon we had two tables of euchre, one of cribbage and one of crokinole. There was a volunteer at each table. They were Freda Hulbig, Jeanne Sears, Edna McElwain and Gwen Cox.

We thank them very much for helping us have a happy afternoon.

Pearl Lyle had her daughter Anna, her granddaughter and her two week old great grandson Dustin to visit her this afternoon.

May Horsley and Ina McGuire had their brother Don Sisson and his wife to see them today.

Wednesday Terry and Norma took me with them to Peterborough again to see my sister who is in the hospital. She is improving slowly.

The mail must go through

It was coming in with the mail
That they piled on the sleighs
Off would sail with that team of bays
For The Mail Must Go Through.

As spring approached, the sleigh was put away
The Chevy was backed from the shed
After its winter's rest
Washed and polished, to look its best
But off through the slush and mud must go
In those days it was not fun
To be called upon to do the mail run.

All the folks knew it was up to you
To see that the mail got through
Now there was a driver who had great fame
For getting through, Jimmy by name
He always came in with the mail and a smile
Though it took him an hour to go the last mile
Through the mud and the ruts
But that old Chevy had plenty of guts
And there would be a great to-do
Once again Jimmy had brought the mail through.

Now mail time in this village
Was quite a social affair
Everyone gathered round
From the Parson to the Mayor.

Some went to the local pub
To knock back a pint or two
While they waited for Jimmy to bring the mail through.
Many a world affairs were settled
Over a pint or two of beer
While other friends were invited in
"We won't talk about you, while you're here"
From up the street there came a cheer
At last the Mail was here.

While those down in the pub decided
There was time for one more snort
The Postmaster still had
All that mail to sort
Soon all were off home
To get their thrills
Open old age cheques
And a few bills
The rest of the day there was not much to do
For once again the mail had come through.

So all you young
You might learn a thing or two
Take a lesson on how the mail got through
Instead of complaining
Be proud of what you do
Think back to yesteryear
When the Mailman was greeted with a cheer
Be proud that it's up to you, to see that
"The Mail Must Go Through".

We need your support. Cancer can be beaten.

Environmental clean-up

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Canadians are showing they have the ingenuity and resourcefulness to undertake challenging environmental clean-ups with help from the Environmental Partners Fund.

In the autumn of 1988, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney announced the federal government would create a $50-million fund to support local level environmental clean-ups. The five-year plan was designed to tap the creative energies of concerned Canadians and to supply up to half of the money needed to undertake a given project.

It seems it was an idea whose time had come; because, as of January 25, more than $3.6 million has been approved for 78 projects across Canada.

The estimated value of the projects in donated time, material and money from all partners is $26.4 million.

More than 400 applications were received from a wide range of groups for a similarly wide range of projects: these included river valley clean-ups, anti-litter campaigns, community recycling projects and wildlife habitat restoration and enhancement. Some of the proposals were unsuccessful, but the terms of the fund allow re-applications.

Projects approved in British Columbia give a good idea of what Canadians are concerned about. Under way is one composting project, six recycling drives, six wildlife habitat restorations or improvements, and one environmental restoration.

In his announcement dealing with the first round of approved projects, Environment Minister Lucien Bouchard said, "Interest is growing in this unique and innovative program. I hope the quality of project proposals will continue to be as high as those submitted in the first round of applications."

Projects were assessed by committees in all 10 provinces and both territories. The next two submission deadlines in 1990 are March 1 and June 1.

Dorset acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of February 12 to February 16.

February 12, 2 mm mixed rain and snow, 5.7 pH, from Michigan and southern Ontario.

February 13, 3 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.8 pH, from Michigan and southern Ontario

February 15, 4 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.5 pH, from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York and eastern Ontario.

February 16, 5 cm snow, 4.5 pH, from northwestern Quebec.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Snowmobilers die needlessly

Snowmobilers are dying needlessly at an unprecedented rate this winter across the province, chiefly due to carelessness and unseasonably warm weather.

In January, following the crash of the snowmobiles through unsafe ice, 11 people died. Last year, during the same month, one person died when his snowmobile fell through thin ice into frigid water. In the majority of fatal accidents, alcohol was a significant factor, say the Ontario Provincial Police.

So far this winter season, 22 people have died in 18 separate snowmobile incidents from all causes including crashing through ice, hitting hidden objects and traffic accidents.

Last winter season (December 1988 to spring 1989), from all causes, 30 died in 27 snowmobile accidents.

OPP officers across the province implore all snowmobilers to check ice conditions on all bodies of water this winter before venturing out. If you don't know--don't go!

Four deadly threats

Snowmobilers, whose snowmobiles crash through the ice, face four deadly threats to their lives:

SHOCK of falling into icy waters can induce an involuntary gasp called the "torso reflex". If the snowmobiler's mouth is underwater when this gasp occurs, drowning is not only possible but probable. It time allows, the solution if for snowmobilers to cover their faces with their hands and to hold their breath.

HYPOTHERMIA, associated with unexpected immersions into frigid waters, is another major factor in the deaths of snowmobilers (and motorists) whose vehicles plunge through the ice. Because cold water chills 25 times faster than cold air, life expectancy is measured in seconds. Get out of the water immediately. Do not remove wet clothing, which will retain some body heat, until shelter and warmth is found.

PANIC, in water both summer and winter, when combined with the fourth deadly factor, ALCOHOL, can be lethal.

Juice recall

by Doreen Hawman

On January 1, 1990, Ontario's Smoking in the work place took effect. The new legislation prohibits smoking in enclosed work places in all businesses. Employers may designate a smoking area for smoking employees, but it cannot exceed 25 percent of the work place floor area. The Act, enforced by the Ministry of Labour, carries a maximum fine of $25,000 for employers and $500 for employees.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Saturday, February 17, Sundor Canada Inc. announced a recall of all fruit juices from concentrate in 48 fluid ounce cans with the following brand names: Bright's, Martin's, A&P, Dominion, IGA, Food City, Cavalier, Timothy's, Calbeck's, Pantry Shelf, Red Label (Maritimes), Sunshine, and Libby's Pineapple Juice. If you have any questions about the recall, you are invited to use the toll-free number: 1-800-268-1121.

The Haliburton County Information Centre is now preparing Tax Return for Seniors and low-income families. For further information contact your nearest centre by calling 457-2733 weekdays, or 286-4100 Monday and Tuesday. If you live outside our toll-free area, please call collect.

School essays on environment

The February 21 meeting of Minden Women's Institute was held at the Common Room at 2 p.m. with the president in charge. The roll call was answered by 14 members and one guest was made welcome. The letters were read and card report showed 11 cards sent and the collection for the fund and Pennies were taken. Mrs. W. Moore mentioned that donations of articles made toward furnishing the Bowron Project. The president suggested that some of the members might volunteer time at the Bowron site in the summer.

It was decided that the School Essay on Environment go on at Archie Stouffer Public School with Mrs. D. Cox chairperson. She will choose her committee with cash prizes to be awarded. Members may also offer goods or baking or crafts for the Flea Market at Hyland Crest to be held May 19.

Several amusing readings were enjoyed by all. After we adjourned videos from the museum group of Pearl Barry and May Windover were shown. A delicious lunch was served by the committee. On the mini-raffle, the lucky winner was Grace Coburn.

The next meeting will be held in the Common Room March 21 at 2 p.m. All ladies welcome.

Jeanne Sears, P.R.O.

NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF Section 34(12) of the Planning Act, S.O. 1983
THE COUNCIL OF the Corporation of the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden enacts as follows:
"Notwithstanding the provisions of Table 4 with respect to the minimum front yard requirement, where in a lot in any Rural zone abuts a navigable waterway or a Crown Shoreline reserve, the front lot line of such lot shall be the lot line abutting the navigable waterway or Crown Shoreline reserve. The minimum front yard for any such lots in the Rural zone shall be 20 metres from the high water mark of the navigable waterway or lake or alternatively, where a Crown Shoreline reserve exists, there shall be no minimum front yard."

NOTICE is hereby given that Council will hold a public meeting in the Municipal Council Chambers on Thursday, March 8, 1990 at 1:30 p.m. to consider an amendment to the zoning By-law 86-26 which would change the Rural zone by the addition of a new Section 4.163 Front Yard Setback.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, that before passing the said Zoning by-law amendment, Council shall then and there hear any person who attends the said meeting to make representation in respect of the proposed amendment.

FURTHER INFORMATION, if required, may be obtained from the Municipal Offices during regular office hours.

DATED at Minden this 7th day of February, 1990.

FIRST PUBLIC NOTICE
FROST CENTRE SHORELINE REHABILITATION

The Ministry of Natural Resources is proposing to rehabilitate the shoreline on St. Nora Lake, directly in front of the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources complex.

The project will address:
A) The recreational use and other activities which now exist along the shoreline, and on immediately adjacent shoreland areas.
B) Suitability of shoreline development with respect to ecological impacts
C) Public safety and shoreline aesthetics

Rehabilitation of the shoreline is proposed in accordance with the approved Ministry of Natural Resources, class environmental assessment processes for shore & stream stabilization and access points and docks. This assessment process is intended to give interested and affected parties the opportunity to provide input into the planning of such a project. If after reviewing the project you feel serious environmental concerns remain unanswered, it is your right to request in writing, that the Minister of Environment require this proposal to be subject to the formal review process of an individual environmental assessment.

The environmental assessment of this project is available for public viewing at the Frost Centre's Lands and Waters Office, weekdays (8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.) until March 23rd, 1990. You may wish to contact the Frost Centre to confirm an appointment for review of the environmental assessment. Public comments are invited before March 23rd, 1990. After this, the environmental assessment will be redrafted in light of expressed concerns.

A newsletter highlighting these concerns, and action to be taken, will then be distributed to individuals who respond to this notice, and those directly affected. They will also receive final notice when construction dates have been set.

This is the first public notice to be sent. Copies have been mailed to property owners on St. Nora Lake, and to affected private and government groups. Copies have been posted at the St. Nora Lake access points, and will appear in local newspapers.

born in Haliburton, February 14 at 5:20 a.m., 8 lbs., 15 oz. Many thanks to Dr. Tina Moga, and all the staff at the hospital. Our stay was great!

IN MEMORIAM

CHILTON: Lauretta. In loving memory of a dear sister, who passed away three years ago today, February 26, 1987.

Softly the leaves of memory fall
Gently I gather, treasure them all.
Some may forget, now that you've gone.
I will remember no matter how long.

Lovingly remembered by sister Bernice.

CHILTON: In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Lauretta, who passed away February 26, 1987.

Two tired eyes are sleeping,
Two willing hands are still.
For one who suffered far too much
Is resting in God's will.
You never said goodbye to me,
For perhaps it's just as well.
I never could have said goodbye
To one I loved so well.

Always remembered by husband Jack, son John, Phyllis, Tracy and Cheryl.

COWAN: (Congdon) Edna. In loving memory of a dear sister Edna, who passed away on February 16, 1989.

She walks with us down quiet paths,
And speaks in wind and rain,
When the everlasting memories,
Giver her back to us again.

Lovingly remembered by Alton and Shirley

IN MEMORIAM

DEACON: Harold. In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away on February 25, 1988.

We never lose the ones we love,
For even though they're gone,
Within the hearts of those who care
The memories linger on.

Sadly missed by wife Elva and daughter Lois.

HARRISON: In loving memory of Walter James Harrison, father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great grandfather who passed away February 26, 1978.

I know there is a very happy soul up there
Why? You have now received your wish
You would always wish before my very eyes
Praise Our Lord for He is now answering my prayer.
God Bless you my dear.
I love you still my loving dear and I always will.

Love from Simone

Harry
- entered into rest at Hastings Manor Nursing Home in Belleville on Friday, February 16, 1990. Henry Edgar Bagshaw, in his 74th year, formerly of Sunderland, Ontario, was the beloved husband of the late Marjorie Jane McGuire (1990); loving father of David of Coburg and Beth (Mrs. E. Richter) of Trenton; dear father of four grandchildren; dearly remembered by three brothers Harold, Lloyd and Glenn, and one sister Iva (Mrs. Stan Jewell). Predeceased by one sister Jean Sommerville. A service was held in the Pinkham Chapel of the Thorne Funeral Home in Sunderland on Monday, February 19. Spring interment at the Bagshaw Cemetery.
